Just One Touch of Play Makes All Carmel Kin

TO Our Immediate and Surrounding Neighbors:

A little touch of Coney Island, the Street Carnivals of Paris, and whatever they call such affairs in England, Italy and all other beleagured nations—I mean League of Nations—and we all can have a good time, regardless of the kind of tree our ancestors lived on—I mean, sprang from.

This May Carnival is to be a sort of out-door Comedia, where whatever talent you have for expressing Play can be unwrapped from its "napkin" and give joy to yourself and community.

If you would rather be an appreciative audience, that's all right, too; those who specialize never seem to object to that. Suppose there were no humans to enjoy Nature's acts, I wonder if she would put on so much gorgeous raiment and change the Seasons and the backgrounds so marvelously?

Whatever raiment you can best be care-free in for a day—not a labor-union day, mind you, but a twelve- or fourteen-hour one—will be the thing to wear—that will be gorgeous to us—because it is the Spirit of Play that is to be May Queen at the Carnival.

Of course, in this day of symbolism in Art, we are going to have an honest-to-goodness May Queen, too, and you mustn't sell your vote (because this isn't a political play) but buy it, which is much more honest; n'est ce pas?

An official program will be published before the date of the Carnival, which is the Thirteenth of May—a date that we are hoping will be associated with this and in years to come with a sort of Ring-Around-the-Rosy, all-dance together, community spirit of Springtime.

The Shades of such times in the past will dance with us, and the Harvest of Work will be easier to accomplish afterwards, because of our libations (soft, of course) to the Carnival Spirit of Youth and Wholesome Fun.

DUNCAN McDUFFIE TO BUILD HOME HERE

Duncan McDuffie, real estate promoter of the bay cities, and his wife, are spending a few weeks resting in Carmel. Mr. McDuffie was one of the dollar-a-year men in Washington during the war. He was identified with Hoover in the food administration. The McDuffies have been making vacation trips to Carmel for several years, but have now purchased property here, with the expectation of building in the near future.

Route Recommended for Carmel State Highway

AS the result of frequent conferences between officials of the Carmel Development Company and the Del Monte Properties Company a tentative route for that portion of the Carmel-San Simeon Highway between Carmel and Monterey has been recommended to the engineers of the State Highway Commission, and will probably be adopted.

The route proposed is through the property of both these land concerns, following more or less the line which divides the holdings of both companies, who are giving the right of way without cost and without condemnation proceedings.

The road will be straightaway as near as the conformation of the ground will permit, and the grade will be about two and one-half per cent. It will connect with the present San Carlos avenue road at or near Second avenue, continuing through north Carmel and over the Del Monte Properties land to its juncture with the Carmel Hill road.

The Highway Commission will positively not consider the construction of a highway on that part of the present road where the numerous dangerous turns are located, and for this same reason it has been recommended that the road down San Carlos avenue north of the Mission be straightened, taking its route through the Martin property and directly in front of the Mission.

Public Demands That Memorial Be Completed

As a result of the Ex-service Man's letter in last week's Pine Cone, we are in receipt of the following information:

Charles Sumner Greene, the architect who designed the memorial fountain has been out of town but has now returned, and work on the fountain will soon be resumed. There is now enough rock in sight and Mr. McMichael, the stone mason, will be on the job shortly.

Meanwhile, efforts are being made to raise the necessary funds.

The first definite action by any organization toward financing the soldier memorial was taken last Monday evening by the pioneer Manzanita Club, when a hustling committee of five was appointed to arrange for a dance on or about May 20th at Manzanita Hall.

The net receipts will be devoted to the memorial fund. Tickets will soon be placed on sale and must all be sold, whether the purchaser attends the affair or not. To help complete the memorial is a patriotic community duty.

Opportunity to File Complaints

Trustee Helen Parkes, as Commissioner of Water and Light, announces that she will meet those who have complaint to make as to the water service on Tuesdays and Fridays, 2 to 5 o'clock, at the city hall.

Lund Character Recital at Del Monte Tonight

A RECITAL has been arranged by Miss Alice Seckels, under the management of Hal Bragg, to be given tonight at Hotel Del Monte, by Mrs. Henry Lund, Jr., whose work is in impersonations—much in the line of the Ruth Draper character sketches, so much in vogue during the past winter in New York.

Mrs. Lund has appeared in a number of entertainments for charity given in and around San Francisco and Santa Barbara. She also appeared last winter in several recitals in New York, Mrs. Henry Waters Taft having given her home to Mrs. Lund to present her repertoire for charity, and in which she made a great success before an exclusive audience.

She also appeared with great success before a capacity audience in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, and earned a most enthusiastic reception when she gave a program at a dinner given by the Business and Professional Women's club in New York.

Mrs. Lund not only gives character sketches, but impersonations of famous actresses. Numbered among those whose style and personality she approximately renders are Elsie Ferguson, Minnie Maddern Fiske and Yvette Guilbert.

Josephine Hart Phelps says: "In her impersonations Mrs. Henry Lund, Jr., displayed a versatility which not only enabled her to lend much lively humor to her character sketches, but also to give several dramatic monologues taken from such plays which have made records in New York as "Enter Madame." In these Mrs. Lund revealed the possession of imitative skill and dramatic abandon."

Plans for Carmel's New Postoffice Accepted by Government

THE various handicaps under which the local postoffice force has for a number of years labored and struggled will soon be at an end.

It is unofficially announced that plans and specifications for a new office, prepared and submitted by Thomas W. Morgan, Jr., brother of DeNeale Morgan, have been accepted by the department in Washington, and that construction of the building, on the west side of Dolores street, between Ocean and Seventh avenues, will begin shortly.

With Carmel's increased population and business, bringing about a much augmented volumn of receipt and dispatch of all classes of mail matter, especially parcel post, has arisen the necessity for more space, more lock boxes and more help.

It is understood that the government will sign a lease for ten year's occupancy.

The present quarters of the office, the property of Dr. J. E. Beck, will probably be made into a store.

Effects of Applause Investigated

How the weather affects applause in the theatre is being investigated by Dr. E. E. Free, scientist, and oft-time sojourner in Carmel, who recently arrived in New York.

"Marjolaine," a musical revival of "Pomanda Walk," now repeating at the Broadhurst Theatre the success of the play itself, is being utilized by Dr. Free as the basis of a series of experiments. Last summer he assisted with the production of "Pomander Walk" at our Forest Theatre.

"All actors will tell you," says Free, "that it is a constant puzzle to them how on certain nights a given line will receive applause while on other nights the same line or number of lines receive no applause. The difference in the personnel of the audience is not, I believe, a sufficient answer to this, for where the average intelligence of the audience is the same, this difference still exists. I purpose to prove that the amount and length of applause in a theatre is not alone the result of appreciation, but is determined largely by the weather conditions."

Dr. Free began the experiments last week. He is being assisted by Miss Marion Allen.

Vagrant Impressions of The Pine Nut

Is there a man or a woman who has not at some time felt the call of the footlights? Down in every one of our inmost hearts we feel that a Mary Pickford or a Richard Mansfield is lost to the world because of something or other which hindered us in reaching the height of the truly great. I, even I, the Pine Nut, once had stage aspirations.

I was playing "Julia" in "The People's Attorney", which was written and produced by Perry Newberry at the Forest Theater. I knew my lines up and down, in and out, and forwards and backwards. At my first stage exit, Bill Kibbler and Daniel W. Willard were in the wings and they began to do a war dance around me and to tell me how well it was going and how well I was doing. I was all puffed up anyway—I'd just made all of three people in the audience laugh—and I stood and lapped up the stuff they were handing out. Bill is a wily old devil. I've always suspected him of piling it on a little thick so that the thing would happen that did happen. Well, I was just giving them bright smiles, encouraging them to go on, when I felt myself seized and very un-gently propelled stage-ward, and Perry was hissing in my ear:

"Get on to that stage, you dodgasted little fool. Don't you know they've waited for you five minutes!"

I hurried up and got there real quicklike. Austin James and Dorothy Maxtone-Grahame were having a terrible time on stage and they were mad enough at me to commit murder. I had ruined their scene. They had to fake a conversation for about five minutes. They weren't clever enough to think of something really good and interesting to say, so they talked of the weather and other inane trifles, while Perry left the prompter's box and hunted through the dressing rooms for me and then discovered me in the wings hanging upon Bill Kibbler's words.

But the thing that rankles in Austin's soul—he throws it up to me to this day, and that was over eight years ago—is that the audience blamed Dorothy and him for that wait—they never dreamed of blaming me.

Now, to show that in every human breast, no matter how depraved, there is a desire for fair play, I'm setting this right after many years. If I could get up the courage to send that nickel that I've owed the United Railroads of San Francisco for fourteen years, to the President of the Company and explain how I bamboozled the conductor out of it, I might start square with my conscience again. I don't so much mind the nickel, but I do hate to have nothing left in my life to regret. Self-condemnation is such an interesting and satisfying thing.

Lots of funny things happened in those days. I wonder how many people are living in Carmel today who saw Mary Austin's "Fire". It was a tale of prehistoric man and one of the characters forgot to take off his spectacles. Imagine the combination! A cave-man carrying a club and wearing a breechclout and a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles. Aside from that, however, he seemed to make a perfectly good and convincing cave-man.

And some of us will never forget the time Bill Overstreet wore a suit of armor and it scared the people into fits because Bill was so thin that nobody could see him and they all thought the armor was haunted and was walking around by itself.

Another good story of Xavier Martinez came to my ears the other day. Joe Mora is responsible for it, so if anybody is to be burned at the stake, let it be Joe. The scene was the Bohemian Grove, where the annual play is perpetrated. All of the great go there every year for a feast of reason and a flow of—", well, we'll stop right there and let it go at that.

Marty, along with about five hundred other temperamental souls was in attendance. Two of the geniuses were carrying on a conversation which finally waxed bitter and by the time Marty ambled up, a battle was on. They went to it hard. The Carpentier-Dempsey scrap was but a gentle little summer zephyr beside that row. Marty began to act the peacemaker. He danced up to one, then to another, all the time having to be exceedingly careful not to get in the way of flying arms and legs.

"Oh, boys," he entreated. "Let me beg of you—do not so desecrrrate thees spot. Theenk of eet. Eet is God's holy temple. (Swat. Swat). You are brothers. All mankind should ... together in peace and ... (Biff, biff).

The talk Marty gave those fellows was something pathetic. He out-Sundayed Billy Sunday himself, but they kept right on hating each other. They just wouldn't walk up to the mourners' bench and get a change of heart. Marty became desperate. His friends were cutting each other up so badly, that it looked as if by and by there'd be nothing left, so he decided on more strenuous measures—he turned on the water works,—yes, he actually sobbed.

That had some effect. The men by that time had gotten rid of most of the Dutch courage they had stowed up the night before and the spectacle of a fellow man in tears was too much for them, so they finally desisted. Marty kept right on until the fighters shook hands and left with their arms around each other in search of "some more".

An admiring witness of the scene came up to Marty and gave him a thumping whack on the back and said:

"That was good, Marty. I was proud of you. You certainly played the part of a man in that scrap. The world would be better if there were more men like you in it."

The peacemaker looked reminiscent for a moment, then a fiery gleam came into his black eyes, he thrust out his jaw and doubled up his fists, and hissed:

"If that fellow had called me what he called ————, I'd have cut the eensides out of heem!"

WILL OBSERVE POSTAL WEEK

Without the Postal Service, business would languish in a day, and be at a standstill in a week. Public opinion would die of dry rot. Sectional hatred or prejudice only would flourish, and narrow-mindedness thrive.

The biggest distinctive business in the world and it comes nearer to the innermost interests of a greater number of men and women than any other institution on earth. No private business, however widespread, touches so many lives so often or sharply; no church reaches into so many souls, flutters so many pulses, has so many human beings dependent on its ministrations.

"Postal Improvement Week" has been set for May 1, by the Postmaster General. This is the first general campaign of its kind in the Postal Service for several decades. Business men and their organizations, large users of the mail, newspapers, motion pictures, advertisers, and the entire organization of 320,000 postal workers are to be enlisted in this country-wide campaign of interest in postal improvements. Your help is vital. Address your letters plainly with pen or typewriter. Give street address. Spell out name of State, don't abbreviate. Put your return address in the upper left hand corner of envelope (not on the back) and always look at your letter before dropping in the mail to see if it is properly addressed. This care in the use of the mails is for your benefit and speeds up the dispatch and delivery of mail matter.

If you have any complaints of poor service make them to your postmaster. He has instructions to investigate them and report to the department.

COURTESY

It sticks in human relations like postage stamps on letters. The POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT expects it to be used by its postmasters and employees in dealing with the public.

Help them in its use beginning with POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK, May 1-6, 1922.

"MORE BUSINESS IN GOVERNMENT"

This apt phrase was used in President Harding's first message to Congress and applies particularly in postal management where postmasters are being impressed with the fact that they are managers of local branches of the biggest business in the world.

HERE COMES A STRANGER!

Let's make our post office look neat, Mr. Postmaster. Straighten up the rural letter box, Mr. Farmer. Tidy up some, Mr. Rural Carrier. First impressions are lasting. Maybe Mr. Stranger, taking notice of these improvements, will come back, bringing you benefits. Start these with "POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK" May 1-6.

HUMANIZING THE POSTAL SERVICE

"There is no unimportant person or part of our service. It is a total of human units and their co-operation is the key to its success. In its last analysis, postal duties are accommodations performed for our neighbors and friends and should be so regarded, rather than as a hired service performed for an absentee employer."—Postmaster General Hubert Work.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO ADVERTISERS

On and after May 1st, 1922, the rates for display advertising in the Pine Cone will be $.50 per inch.

The cost of production, together with the increased circulation and quality of the paper, and the necessary additional equipment has made the above change imperative.

Six months ago much of the Pine Cone was syndicate matter; today [illegible] a paper filled with live news; new departments are constantly being created and a new interest on the part of our readers is being manifested. This all entails more expense in the production,—labor, equipment, stock, office help,—and if the Pine Cone is going to continue to serve the people effectively, substantial recognition must be made of its value as an Advertising medium.

We believe that our [illegible]isers are fully aware of the value of Pine Cone space and that they will be glad to continue at the new rates. We take this opportunity of [illegible]ing the [illegible] in advance [illegible] their continued patronage and we assure the general public as well as our Advertisers that it will be our constant endeavor to supply our readers with the best and most valuable advertising medium to be found in the County.

POLICIES OF NEW BOARD OUTLINED

A town which is composed of a lot of addle-headed people who always agree on everything is apt to continue to have "a grocery store, three saloons and a blacksmith shop". In placid agreement there is stagnation. If this be true, according to the law of opposites, Carmel should go forward, for we certainly disagree—most decidedly, but we can be sportsmanlike, forget old feuds, and boost instead of knock.

An open and impersonal mind is a great asset, whether it be individual or national. Let us judge the new board of trustees by what they do rather than by what we thought or heard they would do. Let us start fresh, with all of the old election controversies forgotten; let us imagine that all of the fancied wrongs that we thought were done us have been righted; let us try to realize a very important truth—that, whether we individually voted for the present board or whether we didn't, they were elected by a majority of the people, and they are, therefore, our representatives. They will perhaps represent us better if we drop our antagonisms and cooperate with them in the largest way.

Captain W. L. Maxwell, the new president of the board, speaks very definitely regarding their future plans. He believes that the crying need of Carmel at present is for an adequate water system and judging by the results of the meeting last Tuesday night, the board of trustees are going to lose no time in tackling this proposition.

Captain Maxwell's attitude is direct and uncompromising. He believes in absolute efficiency in all departments of the city government; he believes the ordinances on the statute books should be either repealed or enforced; he looks at friend and foe impersonally as far as his actions in civic affairs are concerned; and with all this, he is very emphatic in his notions of democracy.

He says:

"I believe that the people should be encouraged to come to the meetings of the board and to participate in a full, free, and open discussion regarding matters of public interest. To that end, we shall publish from time to time in the Pine Cone an advance notice of matters to be discussed and acted upon at the next meeting so that those interested may attend and give voice to their opinions instead of waiting until afterwards and then criticising. As long as the people have elected us, it is only fair that they should continue their interest and not drop us just because election is over. It is very discouraging to any group of men trying to conduct a business when those vitally concerned lack proper interest."

A SUGGESTION

Plant a tree and become a lover of all trees. Watch the tree grow year by year. Measure its girth and then calculate the time and energy nature has expanded in providing the great forests that blanket the mountains of California. Calculate, too, the wisdom of the United States Forest Service slogan, "Help Prevent Fire", and the California State Board of Forestry query, "Will your children have timber to burn?"

IN CASE OF FIRE

City Trustees Get Down to Actual Work

Fire protection, an improved water system and new roads were discussed at the meeting of the city board of trustees Tuesday evening. The body is a unit in favor of the three propositions, and some really constructive planning was done.

The chief of the fire department, J. E. Nichols, and H. P. Larouette grve an outline of the condition of the firemen's organization and asked for some expression from the board concerning plans for meeting the need for fire protection.

Trustee Newberry stated that he was strongly in favor of prompt action and suggested that the firemen submit data on apparatus costing from $3000 to $3500. The city attorney was instructed to present at the next meeting the various methods of raising money to purchase apparatus.

The condition of the roads in the northern part of town was discussed, and it was the sense of the board that one or two streets in that section be immediately put through. Mr. Newberry offered to deed twenty feet of his property at Fourth and Monte Verde to the city, in order that that roadway may follow the present curve and so save the trees.

Camino Real was mentioned as another improvement possibility.

The water question was given a great deal of consideration. It was decided to make a further survey of the situation before taking action.

The board will meet tonight to receive bids on the Ocean avenue paving job.

BROWNIE SPEAKS

Good morning, folks! Every dog has his day, and at last mine has come, thanks to the Humane Society's "Be Kind to Animals Week," and it will be 168 hours long.

I've always wanted to get my bark into the Pine Cone, but He tells me the bark belongs on a tree, not in the Cone, so all I can do is lie down and pine.

But tonight I have sneaked into the composing room, shoved out several good-paying ads, and am setting up this copy all of a shiver; if anybody catches me at it—woof!!

But they are mighty good to me and I'm going to try to wiggle a little space out of Him and Her and the Other Two, for there is many a time when I long to tell what I know about how to treat a dog, how to understand all animals, and yes, I'd like to make a few suggestions about how humans should treat humans.

Take it from me, a dog can give you pointers. Look at my eyes the next time you see me and tell me if you see there egotism, greed, hatred or deceit, nothing worse than natural unperverted instinct, mischief, hunger, and, on occassion, fear and anger.

S-h-h! Someone is coming—and I've only just begun; a last word.

Be kind to animals, for you are one yourself. BROWNIE

CARNIVAL DRAMATICS

The vaudeville to be given at Arts and Crafts Hall on the evening of May 13th for the Little Theatre fund is a part of the Carnival Celebration of that day.

The program will begin with a one-act play, "Will o' the Wisp," and will be followed by a musical number produced by Thomas V. Cator.

The final number on the program will be a roaring one-act comedy, arranged by Herbert Heron from Shakespeare's "Henry VI." An interesting synopsis of the comedy will be published in the Pine Cone next week.

The work of the children in the poster contest at Sunset School is on display this week on Ocean avenue. The winning posters are exhibited in the show window of the Pine Cone office.

A special table is set aside at the local library this "Be Kind to Animals Week" where books and papers may be found pertaining to our furry and feathered friends. Rudyard Kipling calls them Little Brothers, and brings out that all dumb animals are friends to those who love and understand them.

RECREATION CASTIGATION RETRIBUTION

At one o'clock last Monday afternoon the decks of Joe Hand's office were cleared for action. Captain L. Ward was summoned to help steer a straight course and "Jedge" Hand proceeded to try Louis Marques on a charge of disturbing the peace.

The trouble all happened up in Old Carmel last Saturday night. The Spanish contingent were indulging their desire for recreation. There was a sound of revelry by night—dancing and eats and whatnot. Then Marques called Martin Raygoza out and smashed him on the face. As Raygoza went down he chose a rock to fall on, and he was caught fore and aft, so to speak. Then a sound struck like a rising bell; it was Gus Eng- and his horse. [illegible] cue. When Gus got there they were about to summon the undertaker, but Dr. Beck was called instead and the victim patched up.

As always, a woman lurked in the case somewhere; also three men—the puncher, the punchee, and a friend. The main point in the controversy between the witnesses and the court was as to how much punching on the head it required to put a man out. It wasn't settled, but Marques was set back 15 pesos — 10 for the punching and 5 for the patching. The defendant demurred, but when Marshal Gus cut in with "You pay your fifteen or take thirty days in the cooler," Marques hurriedly took up a collection.

Now we have in the town treasury a nest egg for a new city hall. When we get $13,000 more we'll commence to build.

But the Spanish boys and girls are wondering why they can't have parties and punch each other occasionally without being singled out for special legislation. They reason, "If the highbrows do it and get away with it, why can't we?" Why?

REVIEW OF BOOKS IN CARMEL LIBRARY

Another History of the World

For those of us, children and adult, who have been fired with an enthusiasm for a comprehensive view of world history by the popularity of Mr. Wells' "Outlines," and yet have been overwhelmed by the ponderousnese of even the seemingly shorter revised edition, Hendrik Van Loon's "The History of Mankind" will be a delight. For Professor Van Loon's volume is short, of large type, entertainingly written, and copiously illustrated. "What is a book without illustrations," said Alice. Alice and the Mad Hatter and the Walrus and the Carpenter would have delighted in Mr. Van Loon's illustrations. They are as appealing and communicative as those of Jean Webster or Mr. Roosevelt.

I enjoy Van Loon's approach to history. He inspires one with a confidence in his background of information and correlation, yet he presents the many thousand years of events so simply a child may delight in reading them. We shall have more intelligently [illegible] and be more freshly informed ourselves if Mr Van Loon's work supplants books of knowledge.

Hungary's Favorite Playwright Scores Great Success

Molnar's "Lilliom," a play of prologue and seven scenes, seems to us worthy the high praise it is receiving in Hungary and abroad. It is charmingly and searchingly done and excites one to laughter and to tears and to breathless joy.

Lilliom, the hero, is a merry go-rounder, a vagabond, almost a thief, and a suicide—yet but a hair's-breadth, though inevitably but a hair's-breadth, from a saint. One is amazed at the skill which presents with no touch of sentimentality this fellow, at once a vulgar, rough, fearful wife-beater and bully, and at the same time a tender, affectionate, deeply denying person. He refused to support his wife, yet killed himself rather than disgrace her. He slapped her when she wept for their poverty, yet stole a star out of heaven for their child. He is a gorgeous, shouting chanticleer when he learns that the child is to be born.

The force of Lilliom is well sustained by a carefully-presented corps of minor characters, one or two of whom move with the naive wonder of characters in early mystery plays.

We're All Disappointed But We'll Get 'Em Yet

The proposed visit here of the Stanford Glee Club boys is off for the present. It was first planned to have them here last Saturday and Sunday, but the intercollegiate track meet interfered. Then it was arranged for the coming week-end, but a carnival affair at Stanford upset that plan.

The boys haven't forgotten the good time they had here last month, as is evidenced by the letters of appreciation that continue to come. Only yesterday Mrs Ivy Basham not only received a letter a number of kodak pictures showing the boys on the beach in bathing attire.

Someone rises to remark that of the alleged "five years' vacation from the Forest Theatre," that during at least two years of that period Perry Newberry was in France on more urgent business.
